

SUN Bucks

A Tested and Effective Strategy for Ending Summer Hunger

SUN Bucks is a program for States, Indian Tribal Organizations, and territories to provide food dollars to low-income families with school-age kids over the summer months. This program, also known as Summer Electronic Benefits Transfer (or Summer EBT), can help close the summer hunger gap when kids are on summer break and not getting nutritious school meals.

This Summer, states, Indian Tribal Organizations, and territories offering SUN Bucks will provide a one-time payment of $120 per eligible school-age child to families to buy groceries, similar to how USDA's Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) benefits are used. SUN Bucks works hand-in-hand with other USDA nutrition programs to connect every eligible child with nutritious food in the summer.

SUN Bucks is a proven game-changer in the fight against child hunger.

SUN Bucks is an evidence-based program! Research shows that providing families with summer grocery benefits reduces child hunger and supports healthier diets.

USDA tested SUN Bucks as a demonstration project in select States and Indian Tribal Organizations for several years. Rigorous evaluations showed that SUN Bucks:

Decreased the number of kids with very low food security by one-third!

↑ Whole grain & dairy consumption

↓ Sugar-sweetened beverage consumption

↑ Fruit & vegetable consumption

↓ Child food insecurity

Research shows that providing families with summer grocery benefits reduces child hunger and supports healthier diets.

When kids are food insecure, they may skip meals or eat less because there isn't enough food to go around.

During the COVID-19 Public Health Emergency, States, Indian Tribal Organizations, and territories operated a temporary program similar to SUN Bucks, which demonstrated the potential of expanding the program nationwide. Research found that this program:

33%

Decreased children's food hardship by 33% after benefits were issued.

2.7-3.9 million

Lifted at least 2.7 to 3.9 million children out of hunger.

Let's join forces to make SUN Bucks a success!

Together we can ensure that every child has the nourishment they need during the summer months.
